

Leeds Trinity University: Summary of 2024-25 to 2027-28 access and participation plan

What is an access and participation plan?

An access and participation plan (APP) is an official document required by the Office of Students (OfS). It sets out how we at Leeds Trinity University (LTU) aim to provide all students with equality of opportunity to achieve their best.

You can see the full APP for Leeds Trinity University here.

Key points

Our APP focuses on improving access, success and progression for students of all backgrounds, ethnicities, and identities. We have made commitments to ensure that mature students, male students, and students of Asian, black, mixed and other ethnicities have higher continuation rates and receive a good degree outcome. We also commit to supporting young people from the most disadvantaged groups in education to continue and progress in school.

What we are aiming to achieve

We want students of all identities and backgrounds to succeed while with us, including completing their degree, being awarded a good degree, and progressing to a career that they value. The APP is focused on ensuring that we have equity across all student groups. We have identified that the groups who are most at risk of not having an equitable outcome are Asian, black, mixed and other ethnicity students, mature students, and male students. Our activities and goals are developed to challenge inequities faced by these groups and to ensure all students have the same opportunities to succeed.

What we are doing to address key risks to equality of opportunity

Our approach aims to provide all students from all backgrounds the best possible opportunity to succeed. We will:

1. Work with schools to develop and support positive perceptions of higher education for students that experience high levels of disadvantage.
2. Support attainment in schools for young people that experience high levels of disadvantage.
3. Increase continuation and attainment for Asian, black, mixed and other ethnicity students, mature students, and male students through developing institutional belonging.
4. Eliminating awarding gaps for Asian, black, mixed and other ethnicity students, mature students, and male students, through curriculum revision and academic practice.
5. Increase continuation and attainment rates for our Asian, black, mixed and other ethnicity students through directly challenging racism and racial inequity within LTU.
6. Improve the progression rates of Asian, black, mixed and other ethnicity students, to ensure equitable outcomes such as graduate career opportunities and pathways to post-graduate study.

How students can get involved

Students are an essential part of our APP! We want to students to assess our progress, hold the university accountable, and help shape our activities. We work closely with the Leeds Trinity Students Union and with current students. To get involved contact the lead, Andi Brierley; Leeds Trinity Students' Union; or the Office for Institutional Equity (OIE).

Evaluation – how we will measure what we have achieved

Our APP sets out what outcomes we expect to happen for each of our activities, and how we expect to measure these. We will publish findings from our major projects on our website, as well as sharing these at LTU events and with other universities. We care about understanding what activities work, who they work for, and how they work, so evaluation is built into our activities from the start. We also care about how we evaluate, so we involve lots of diverse voices in the evaluation process from start to finish, and we use a range of methods. If you would like to know more about our evaluation, our outcomes, or get involved, please contact us below.
